SCHOOL FOR BLIND READY FOR OPENING TOMORROW MORNING

With New Superintendent J. T. Hooper, in Charge, School Opens Tomorrow With Few Changes.

With the new Superintendent, J. T. Hooper, formerly of Ashland, now in charge, preparations are completed for the opening of the school for tomorrow. It was stated today that the attendance this year would be about the same as formerly and the total number of students will be about 80. Five new students have been enrolled up to the present time.

There will be but two changes in the faculty of the annual training department of the school. The one is the resignation of Mr. Langham. Mr. Langham will also have supervision of the boy's department of the institution.

The other position, that of vocal instructor, which was filled by Miss Anna K. Nease of Kenilworth, Ind., last year, has not been supplied as yet, owing to the fact that Mr. Hooper was disappointed in several candidates. This position will be filled as soon as possible.

Miss Nease resigned the position last spring to accept an offer as instructor in the Girls' School at Honolulu, Hawaiian Islands. She had been connected with the State Institution for about four years and was esteemed very highly as an instructor.

There have been no changes or additions in equipment or facilities at the school this summer. The recent appropriation will not be used until next summer when additions will be made to the barns, a new silo erected, and other extensive alterations made.

EDGERTON REPORTER SECURES JUDGMENT

Judgment in Case of Coon vs. Tall Given to Plaintiff, Amounting to $40.44.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Edgerton, Sept. 12.—Judgments were rendered in the municipal and circuit courts of Rock county on today in the case of Coon vs. Tall, which amounted to $40.44. After taking the Wisconsin Tobacco Reporter for nearly ten years Samuel Tall, a town of Albion farmer, refused to pay the bill when it was presented to him. F. W. Coon, the publisher, promptly brought suit against him for the amount. The suit was tried in the justice court in Edgerton Feb. 2, 1909, before a jury demanded and paid for by the defendant. After hearing the testimony the jury found for the plaintiff in a judgment of $10.25 and costs, amounting to something over $23. The defendant then filed an appeal to the municipal court of Rock county but never called up the case for trial for nearly two years when the plaintiff secured its dismissal with an additional judgment for costs of $10. Having got his judgments firmly fixed on the court records the plaintiff allowed matters to rest until Mr. Tall finally discovered that they were a lien upon his property and the sheriff might come upon him any day with an execution, when he employed an attorney and promptly paid into court the amount of the claims with interest and expenses added. Thus a subscription bill that could easily have been compromised with the publisher, had Mr. Tall showed any disposition to do so, cost him $40.44 on top of $15 or $20 attorney fees. Here is another instance where it doesn't pay to attempt to beat the printer.

THE FIRST SHOWING OF THE NEW FURS IN JANESVILLE

J. M. Bostwick & Sons Exhibit A Complete Stock in Two Large Windows.

To start the ball rolling, to direct your attention to our very complete showing of the latest creations in furs we are devoting two of our large windows to a fur display. Here can be seen a few of the garments from our fur stock, which represents an investment of about $10,000. Our orders for fur garments were placed early in the year with some of the country's leading fur houses. Plenty of time has been taken in the making and selecting of perfect skins by the manufacturers. The shipments were received in August and every piece, every garment carefully examined and anything not up to the Big Store's standard was returned. We are not afraid to put our furs against any showing, as we know the most critical comparisons only strengthen our position. It has been so for years, because hundreds of houses in the fur business today were born. We have not been sleeping, but have gone on from year to year, growing in strength until today we occupy a position that gives us confidence to make the strongest statements and know that we can live up to them. You are welcome to call at any time.

SHOPMEN'S STRIKE IS NOT IMMINENT

Rumors of labor trouble with the shopmen on various lines seemed to some persons to involve the local employees, but this rumor is evidently without foundation.

Trade in which all the shop employees are involved is very real to the officials of the Union men and also to the officials of the Northwestern. It is expected that the workmen will engage in a strike at almost any moment provided the officials do not come to the terms demanded by the shopmen. After a conference of five international officers of the different unions held at San Francisco Sunday it was stated that the labor unions had not changed their attitude and the strike was expected some time this week and the lack of funds alone would prevent the union men from taking prompt action. That the railroad company will be obliged to come to the terms of the workmen was stated by the union men or a general strike of the shopmen would be called.

Similar trouble seems to threaten the Illinois Central and for a time it was reported that the same would be true of the Northwestern. No fears for anything of this nature are felt at the local yards and shop in spite of the rumors to the contrary which come occasionally from Chicago. It has been stated, however, that the shopmen are making strong demands for an eight hour day and for a small increase of wages and that the representatives of the shopmen and the officials of the roads were considering the matter and expected soon to come to an amiable settlement of the question.

UNUSUAL TRAFFIC THROUGH LOCAL YARDS YESTERDAY

Yesterday was the banner day for the handling of trains through the local yards. Between forty-five and fifty trains passed through here during twenty-four hours. Forty-five were regularly registered and three or four gravel trains went out without being registered, making the total almost fifty—the largest number that has passed through the local yards for many months during the same period of time. Five of these trains were specials loaded with stock, carloads from the west and northwest to Chicago.

CONDOLA CARS DERAILED WHILE SWITCHING AT YARDS

Four or five gondola cars were derailed in the south end of the new yards this morning while being switched about. The local wrecking crew was taken to the scene and had the cars placed on the tracks again in a short time. Little or no damage was done to the cars or the tracks.

GREEN COUNTY FAIR HAS MANY EXHIBITS

Attractions at Monroe Fair in Progress This Week Are Best in Years.

The officers of the Green County Fair which is held at Monroe, Wisconsin, this week, have been a busy lot since Saturday morning, when race horses, exhibits, privilege people and attractions began to arrive, and by Sunday afternoon the fair grounds had become a scene of activity and now resembles a tented city. The officers have had to telegraph for tents in several departments where the buildings proved too small to hold the exhibits. Five special trains have arrived, one of which carried the Carnival Company direct from the Indiana State Fair, and it is now set up and in readiness. The most sanguine hopes of the officers have been realized, as never before have the grounds had such an array in every department as at the present, and every train bringing more.

We have promised a great fair, which we had a right to do, knowing that it would be given. It is now here, and ready for your inspection.

FOOTBALL OUTLOOK IS VERY GLOOMY AT LOCAL HIGH SCHOOL

Captain Korst Out of Game and Only Few Veterans Back—Schedule Troubles May Prevent Organization of School Team.

The football outlook for the high school has taken a sudden turn for the worse today and it is thought it may not survive though the attending specialists give some hope. The team has lost Captain Korst and the star of the Janesville high school eleven last season must watch the game from the sidelines in the future, as his parents have not deemed it wise for him to play. This loss will sadly cripple the team and a new captain will have to be chosen.

Schedule Difficulties. In addition to this it has been found that Beloit high school upon whom the management was depending to furnish at least two games have not yet fully decided whether or not they will have a team this year. In view of the fact that Monroe, Broadhead, Evansville, and the other surrounding cities have a team the omission of Beloit will break up the schedule and no games can be secured within the territorial limit. Inasmuch as it is almost necessary to some other team to play, football will probably have to be abandoned in this case. Coach McMurray visited the Beloit high school last week and found conditions in a very unsatisfactory state.

Twenty-two Out. During the first practice last night very little was done but the fact that twenty-two men were out encouraged those in charge. The practice consisted in throwing forward passes, fudging on the ball and similar exercises to limber up the staff muscles. As there were only five of the old football candidates out last evening this is a very small working nucleus and is somewhat discouraging. Seventeen green men confronting Coach McMurray is not a promising state of affairs even though many of them are of good size and have stated their intentions of playing the game hard and to the end of the season whether they make the regular eleven or not.

Taking everything into consideration gloom prevails among the football fans at the high school today and prospects are very dismal for a brilliant football season providing any out of town games will be scheduled, the prospects for which are dark at present.

Basket Ball Plans. It may be planned to revive the old time chess games should the school team be a failure, and this will doubtless fill in the gap before the basketball season opens. If there is no gridiron eleven, the entire energies of the athletic department of the high school will be directed toward basket ball.

PREPARING FOR HIS FIGHT. Carl Morris, working with the medicine ball, at left, and at right, Morris and his wife at training quarters. Alphonse, N. J.—Carl Morris, touted as the real "White Man's Hope" and advertised extensively, is putting in some serious training here for his fight with Jim Flynn of New York. It is definitely assured by the promoters that at least the two heavies are to be matched and the result will be watched with much interest. At the Morris training camp here are his wife and trainers.

Plans Are Being Made for Series Between Janesville and Beloit This Fall—Are Organizing Local Nine.

Beginning next Sunday a series of post season games between Beloit and Janesville will be opened at Yost's park. Nick Stokes of Beloit is promoting the games from that end and George Casey and Walter Green are handling the matter for Janesville. Most of the players from the American association and state leagues will have completed their season contracts by that time and some of the best known of these men have been signed by the Beloit and Janesville managers. Casey will manage the Janesville team and Green will be captain in the field. Special arrangements are being made for this opening game and extra accommodations will be furnished by the Interurban company. All games will commence at 3:15 sharp. A double section of cars will leave this city for the park at two o'clock, arriving at the grounds in time for the game.

Achie Anderson, who has played with the Janesville club in previous contests in the "Winter League," will probably be back at his place behind the home plate. For twirlers, Harbison of the pitching staff of the Madison team of the W-I league, will be on the mound, or still of the Fond du Lac team. Still is known to be the Janesville enthusiast, but your pitting a 2 to 6 game against Jesse of the St. Paul American association team's staff of pitchers. Other players on the local squad will be Green on the first sack and Miller on second. Schell of the Rockford state league team will probably play third.

As yet the full line-up has not been determined upon, but Curtis, another Rockford player, will probably work in the right field, Cronin in the center of the outer lot and Hall in the right side of the garden. Markle of Harvard, who played this summer with Janesville, may take a place in the line-up, and Simpson, who formerly played with Monroe, may be signed up for the team. "Jimmy" Ward of Rockford will act as umpire at all the games.

The Beloit line-up includes a number of professional stars and will be as follows for next Sunday:
Liese, St. Paul, American Association, pitcher.
Smiley Smith, Madison, W-I league, catcher.
Sullivan, Rochester, Minn. league, first base.
Briggs, Rockford, second base.
Richards, Rockford, W-I league, third base.
Pierce, Champaign, I-M league, shortstop.
Savolant, Austin, Texas league, left field.
Pulton, Beloit, center field.
Erickson, Rockford, right field.

FLYER SAVED BY ALERT BOY

Minnesota Lad Averts Wreck on Chicago & Northwestern Road.
St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 12.—Eugene Ladbey, a farmer's son, seventeen years old, saved train No. 2 on the Chicago & Northwestern railway from Omaha from running into a washout near Mendota, Minn.

The "danger" point was behind a sharp curve in the track and the indicator for a quarter of a mile before he was at a point where he could stop the speeding train and prevent a possible loss of life.

In appreciation of the boy's efforts the passengers on the dining car took a collection, drew up a set of resolutions and forwarded a check for $100 to the boy.

NEWBERRY FREED OF CHARGE

Ex-Navy Secretary Need Not Answer Manslaughter Allegation.

Wakfield, R. I., Sept. 12.—The charge of manslaughter on which Truman H. Newberry, former secretary of the navy, was arrested last Tuesday when his automobile killed a child was withdrawn when the case came up in the district court. Fred C. Olney, the prosecuting attorney, told the court that George W. Ellis of Milford, Mass., whose seven-year-old daughter Helen was killed by Mr. Newberry's automobile, did not consider Mr. Newberry criminally liable and would not prosecute.

STEAL SPOONS AT FUNERAL

Mourners at Services for Myrtle Reed McCullough Rifle Rooms.

Chicago, Sept. 12.—Crazed for souvenirs overcame the sorrow of one of more mourners at the funeral of Myrtle Reed McCullough, the novelist, who committed suicide three weeks ago, and about $1,000 worth of jewelry, spoons and books were stolen from the home. The losses so far discovered include twelve special bound books of the novelist, 125 souvenir spoons, a gold jeweled buckle and a silver jeweled chain.

THEATER

COLORED SEXTET IN GOOD ENTERTAINMENT

Program of Old-time Melodies Pleased Fair-sized Audience at the Methodist Church.

A fair-sized audience greeted the Old Southland Sextet which appeared last evening at the Carroll Methodist church under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid society. The sextet was a typical southern company and the program consisted mostly of old-time plantation songs sung as they were meant to be sung, by negroes, in the antebellum days. Throughout the program the selections by the soloists, the quartet and the whole company were greeted by heartfelt applause.

The first part of the program was almost entirely composed of old darkey melodies sung with the swing and yet pathos which only a southern darkey can give to a song. The audience could fairly see the old plantations and the negroes singing at their work in the fields.

During the second part of the entertainment a few selections of a somewhat later composition were given along with a number of very well rendered solos. Several well-chosen pieces of a humorous character were especially appreciated by the audience. As a whole the program was exceptionally well rendered and the Ladies' Aid society, under whose auspices it was given, are to be congratulated upon their selection of entertainments.

EXCELLENT COMEDY
APPEARED AT MYERS

Robert E. O'Connor Supported by Able Cast in "The Traveling Salesman" at Theatre Last Night.

With many a laugh and at the same time presenting many of the more serious problems of life, "The Traveling Salesman" presented by Mr. Robert E. O'Connor and a capable company at the Myers Theatre last evening, proved most entertaining and acceptable. Mr. O'Connor in the title role as Bob Blake, was easily the star of the company and the entire interest centered about his excellent acting and his most humorous lines.

Other members of the cast were also very capable. Miss Bess Danton as Beth Elliot, the heroine, who by her pluck and determination won the admiration of Bob Blake, was very pleasing in her part. Julia Earl as Mrs. Elliot, the capable and changeable landlady, also presented her part most admirably.

The famous poker scene had many humorous sides and portrayed some of the real problems of a drummer's existence. In every respect the play was of high moral standard and had plenty of wholesome comedy which kept the audience at all times in exceeding good humor.

The Cow and the Moon. When Charles A. Sellen sends the new musical extravaganza, "The Cow and the Moon," he will present an attraction that is brimful of novelty, not only in the extravaganza field, but in the entire theatre field.

That well known writer of extravaganza, Carlton Lee Colby has provided the music for this new production, and it is proving by far the most popular that young men has yet put forth. The principal numbers include the following: "Bridal Belles" a teasing waltz movement; "Town Hall Tonight" a satirical affair, and a duet number. "If they are all as nice as You," which is a big hit. A new idea in a "Rap" one of those Rap a tap affairs called "They All Look Alike To Me" is said to be one that gets everybody moving.

There are several others that border from Light Opera to Allegorical. The featured numbers are taken care of in "The Work is Too Hard For Me" a sextette number, are causing quite a furor.

Ed. Gilmore, Wm. Gross, Clarence Sterling, Walter Wilson, Hazel Rice, Maude Amanda Scott and others. The sextet is said to be superb. The date is announced for Saturday, Sept. 16, matinee and evening at the Myers Theatre and seats go on sale at box office on Thursday at 9 A. M.

NARROWLY ESCAPED
INJURIES IN WRECK

Lee Woodie of Monroe Was In Northwestern Wreck Near Crystal Lake Yesterday—Was Uninjured.

Monroe, Sept. 12.—Lee Woodie of this city, who has a mail run between Burdick and Chicago, was in a train wreck near Crystal Lake, Ill., yesterday in which the engineer and fireman were severely injured and one brakeman had an arm broken. At the time of the crash Mr. Woodie had finished his work and was lying on the floor and probably would have been hurt had he been standing at the time.

An empty train was standing on the main track and on account of the dense fog the heavy oncoming train on which Mr. Woodie was on board, plunged into the rear of the train.

FUNNY ANSWERS TO LICENSE QUESTION

Applicants for Hunting Licenses Make Many Peculiar Replies to Question, "Distinctive Marks."

What are your "distinctive marks?" This is one of the questions which an applicant for a hunting license must answer in securing the piece of paper which entitles the bearer to shoot the game of Wisconsin under certain restrictions of the game laws. The question is one of a number included on the license blanks, which must be answered, giving a description of the person to whom the license is issued. While many of the answers given are correct, a number, when they come to this question seem puzzled and some of the replies almost convulse the license clerk with laughter. For instance, one man averred that his "distinctive mark" was "homely." Another was distinguished by a "pit-mark on the left leg." The most curious person of all, however, according to his own statement written on the blank space left for the answer to the question was the man who had a "scar on left neck" and he was not two-headed at that. Still another possessed "a wart on the left cheek," and one man's answer was "lame in left leg."

More common errors in this respect are naming the distinctive marks as "indented" or "wear glasses."

STATE COMMISSION FINISHES HEARING TESTIMONY TODAY

missioner Hagen, who suggested that they return to the examination of Mr. Howe. Mr. Howe testified as to his interests in the Janesville Machine company, Lay-Watterson shoe company, Monitor Automobile company, Electric company, and Janesville Electric company. He agreed to furnish a copy of the inventory of the Rock River Cotton company, Janesville Machine company, and Lay-Watterson company, being an office holder in those corporations, providing his business associates were willing, and Mr. Starr was requested to get the statements. With regard to the Monitor company, he being only a stockholder, Mr. Howe stated he could not promise to furnish the required statement.

Peters on Stand.

Some amusement was caused when John W. Peters took the stand. Mr. Peters was questioned as to the recent purchase of the Williams block on East Milwaukee street, which has not been recorded in the register of deeds' office. Asked as to its value, Mr. Peters replied that he did not know, that he had paid $12,000 for it. "Do you consider you bought it at a bargain," was asked, to which Mr. Peters replied, "Yes, I bought it as cheap as I could."

Questioned by Mr. Jeffris as to whether he had heard the assessments were too high in Janesville, Mr. Peters replied, "No."

H. J. Cunningham was asked as to the value of the Hasset & Kohn company, but stated as he was only a stockholder he could not tell, but promised to try to secure an inventory statement for the commissioners. Regarding the fairness of the assessments he was unable to give the commissioners any information.

A promise similar to that of the manufacturers was given by H. L. McNamara of the McNamara hardware store and figures regarding his own property, real estate, were given by him, on questions from the city attorney. Replying to Mr. Jeffris' question as to the fairness of the assessments, Mr. McNamara voiced the opinion that the city was assessed fairly.

Tobacco Assessment.

Method of the assessors in fixing the value of tobacco in the local warehouses were told of by George H. Thurhill, a local dealer. He explained that under the present method of making the assessment the tobacco dealers were overtaxed, but had made no complaint, and described some of the hazards in the business.

A seemingly startling statement was made by Frank H. Blodgett of the Blodgett Milling company in answering City Attorney Maxfield's question: "How much stock did the Blodgett Milling company have on May 1, 1911?"

"I don't if they had $1 worth of stock," said Mr. Blodgett, and explained their methods of storing grain for farmers.

Commissioner Adams, taking the figures from the tax roll, said, "I see you have a horse which is valued at $15. Is that a fair value?" "Yes," was Mr. Blodgett's answer, "It is a high value for that horse."

The value of the personal property of the plant, he stated, on May 1st, was as the assessor had secured it. Diverging from the question of personal property of manufacturing plants, City Attorney Maxfield questioned the witness as to automobiles owned by Mr. Blodgett and their value, the depreciation in value and other points. It was decided by the commissioners, however, that Mr. Maxfield need not go into detail in that regard.

A. J. Harris, secretary-treasurer of the Janesville Barb Wire company, was the last witness called this morning. No important testimony was given by him, but during the course of Mr. Harris' examination Commissioner Hagen stated that in case the manufacturers failed to furnish the statements of their inventory, the facts could be secured by subpoena, although the commission preferred not to take such steps. Mr. Harris explained that he could not promise such a statement, being only a minority stockholder in the company. M. G. Jeffris stated, however, that the statement would without a doubt be furnished, but that Mr. Harris, on account of his position, did not feel that he could give such a promise.

A recess was taken at noon until half past one o'clock.

Testimony Concluded.

The taking of testimony was concluded this afternoon about half past two o'clock and adjournment of the hearing was taken until a week from next Monday, September 25. No further witnesses will be heard, but meantime the commission will receive the statements from the various manufacturers and business men who were called upon to testify. These statements must be forwarded to the tax commission before the twenty-fifth. P. P. Starr, county supervisor of assessments, was asked to add the business men in getting these statements ready and to send them to the commission's office.

None of the witnesses called upon this afternoon gave any verbal testimony of particular importance. Al Schaller of the Schaller & McCoy lumber company taking the stand, promised to send the commission the statement required and a similar promise was made by A. H. Klumb, manager of the local branch yard of the Brittingham & Hixon Lumber company. Samuel Grady testified as to the value of tobacco and C. S. Jackson as to the value of the Jackson block. C. S. Jackson was called to testify as to the value of rent estate, but gave no important testimony, claiming he was unable to do so. F. L. Stevens gave figures on sales of property, but some of the sales he made mention of took place twelve years ago.

A sort of general discussion followed the taking of testimony and Frank P. Starr was asked regarding the inequality of the taxes. Mr. Starr stated that the taxes in Janesville were as near equal as it was possible for them to be and said that Mr. Maxfield had found a few inequalities and based his action on those. Such inequalities, Mr. Starr said, would be found in the assessments in any city.

Decision Expected.

A definite decision on the matter is expected when the commission meets here again on September 25. The general opinion is that the testimony today will show there is not sufficient cause for making a reassessment and Mr. Maxfield's action will prove a fiasco. The statements, based on the inventories of the various businesses, together with the evidence taken to date, will be carefully considered by the commission before making a decision.

JANESVILLE PEOPLE ATTEND STATE FAIR WHICH OPENS TODAY

Nearly One Hundred Persons Leave City for Fair Today—Better Train Accommodations—Weather Favorable.

Between fifty and one hundred persons left here this morning for Milwaukee to see the opening of the state fair that will continue during the rest of the week. Many other residents of Janesville and vicinity are planning to attend the fair during the latter part of the week and it is expected that the transportation accommodations will be taxed between here and Milwaukee on Thursday, Friday and Saturday if all will go who have been planning to.

Plans are made to run extra trains on the Northwestern but the officials of the St. Paul line consider the regular schedule of trains sufficiently convenient for the accommodation of the crowd that is expected to travel from here to Milwaukee during this week. Two morning trains from here and the regular trains returning in the evening will be enlarged by the addition of extra coaches sufficient to carry the crowds back and forth.

Fair Formally Opened.

[BY UNITED PRESS.]

Milwaukee, Sept. 12.—With perfect weather conditions, bright sunlight and clear skies, the 1911 Wisconsin state fair with unprecedented exhibits of fancy live stock and everything that goes to make up a state fair, was formally opened here at 7:30 o'clock this morning. Aeroplane flights and horse racing feature today's program. Fair managers predict a record-breaking attendance for the week.

The St. Leger never fails to attract a crowd that is second only in point of numbers for a flat-racing event to the Derby at Epsom. Tomorrow's race will be the 136th contest for the great event named after a certain Colonel St. Leger, who nearly a century and a half ago lived at Doncaster. It was he who suggested the race. It was in the early part of 1776 that "a sweepstakes of 25 guineas each for three-year-olds" was inaugurated. The distance was two miles, which was reduced in 1815 to 1 mile 4 furlongs, and 193 yards. Later on it was further reduced to 61 furlongs, which is the present distance.

TRACTION EMPLOYEES OF AMERICA IN CONVENTION.

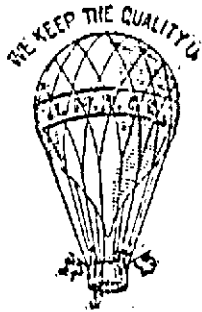

International officers of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electrical Railway Employees of America who presided over this year's convention held in St. Joseph, Mo., September 11th.

St. Joseph, Mo., September 12.—Four hundred delegates from all over the United States and Canada arrived in St. Joseph yesterday, to attend the biennial convention of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electrical Railway Employees of America, they did not use the street cars in going about the city. Two years ago when St. Joseph sent a delegation to Toronto, Canada, to secure the next biennial convention, this city had one of the strongest unions of the country. About six months ago without a great agitation, the traction company succeeded in dropping most of its union men and now has no dealings with the union. It is hoped to get the union reorganized during the convention. For four that this may not be done the local committee of arrangements hired every trolley in St. Joseph, as well as other vehicles in which to carry the delegates about the city.

In view of the recent street car trouble in many cities the convention is looked upon as one of great importance. Rezin Orr, International Treasurer who is in St. Joseph states that the International union now has 45,000 affiliated members. In the United States and Canada and has added 25 new locals and about 2,500 new members since the last convention. Since the Toronto convention it succeeded in adding a million dollars a year to the wages of its members to say nothing of the increases given to street railway men not belonging to the union. The wages run from 20 cents to 45 cents an hour, the latter wage being paid to street railway men of Little, Mont. The men average nine hours a day.

One of the main questions taken up was the death and disability clause. Now $100 is allowed and it is proposed to increase this gradually to $300. This will result in an increase of dues from 75 cents to $1.00 a month. It is probable that President W. D. Mahon and Treasurer Orr, who have in 1902, will be reelected.

NO MAN'S LAND A ROMANCE

BY LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE
ILLUSTRATIONS BY RAY WATERS

COPYRIGHT, 1911, BY LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

"Cataract," he said, releasing the dog. "That's why he couldn't see me. . . I wondered. . . Hello, what now?"

Comforted and reassured, the dog had drawn away and resumed its mysterious circling, nosing the earth with anxious whinnies. Abruptly it paused, tense, like a frame quivering, then made off at a rapid trot in the direction whence it had appeared. A moment later the heartrending howl walked out again.

Almost unwillingly Coast followed, nerving himself against the discovery he feared to make. . . Half a dozen steps, and he almost fell over the dog. He recoiled with a cry of horrified consternation.

"Appleyard!"

But it was not Appleyard.

On raw, naked earth in the middle of the rude village street, a man lay prone with one forearm crooked beneath his head, his other limbs restlessly asprawl. His head, near which the collar squatted, lifting its mournful muzzle to the sky, was bare and thickly thick with reddish hair.

The man had been murdered, foully slain by a means singular and unique outside the Orient. Deep buried in a crease round his throat Coast had seen a knotted loop of crimson silk whipcord—the bow-string of the East. Above it the face was a grinning mask of agony and fear, dark with congested blood; a face that, now the less—despite those frightfully shadowed, blurred and swollen features—had unquestionably once been comely in the youthful Irish way.

He rose and searched the ground for indications of a struggle. He found none. No confusion of footprints about the dead man showed on the damp earth. Apparently the victim had been taken from behind, without warning.

Irresolute, baffled, he lingered for another moment.

By his side the dog howled deep and long.

He turned, half-faint, and fled the place, bearing with him what he was not to forget for many a night: the picture of the blind dog mourning full-mouthed beside the crumpled, lifeless thing that had been its master, there in that nameless spot of death and desolation.

The horror of it crawled like a demon in his brain.

"No Man's Land?" he muttered huskily. . . "Land of devils."

CHAPTER VIII.

"There's no sense in this—none whatever!" Coast spoke for the first time in twenty minutes or so. "Where in thunderation am I, anyhow?"

He stood in thought, pursuing his underlip between a thumb and forefinger, wise alert to detect the clue to his bearings that was denied him, for all that the fog had thinned perceptibly within the last third of an hour. This much he knew and no more: that he was lost.

CHAPTER IX.

His first translatable impulse was to turn and make good his escape before he became aware of him. But, as if the shock of recognition had paled his will, he remained motionless. Counting emotions, resembling the flashes of heat and cold of an ague-fit, alternately confounded and stung him to the point of madness. For the first time in days he had forced home to him all that he had sought to banish from his life: his memories, of his gnawing passion for the woman, of the black crime that had severed their lives. Seeing before him the one being in the world dear to him beyond expression, the one being irrevocably lost to him, he shivered anew with bitter clarity the bridgeless gulf that yawned between them.

It was inevitable that the woman should in time become sensitive to his proximity. Though wholly unaware of his approach, though thoroughly assured that she was alone, a feeling of uneasiness affected her. She resisted it subconsciously and strove to continue the line of thought which had engaged her; but without effect. Then she turned her head, and threw a sickening glance toward the house; the shadow of his figure lay upon the boundary of her vision. She swung quickly to face him, suppressing a cry. Their eyes focused to one another, his burning, her successfully awning with astonishment, incredulity and consternation. For a long moment, during which neither moved or spoke, while she grew pale and yet more pale and he flushed darkly, their questing glances crossed and recrossed like swords at play.

From Katherine's eyes a woman's soul gazed forth, experienced, mature, faired to sadness, gently brave; where had been the eager, questioning, apprehensive, daring spirit of a girl. He who had suffered and lived could see that she in no less degree had lived and suffered since that evening when last he had seen her beneath the street lights, bending forward from the seat of her town-car to bid him farewell. Life is not kind; Life had not been kind to her. If he had endured, she likewise had endured, in another way, perhaps, but in no less measure. She, too, had seen the splendid tapestry of her life's illusions rent to tatters by Life's implacable hand.

For this one man alone was an unwelcome—Blackstock.

Of a sudden, on the echo of that name in his brain, Coast's hatred of the man, the animosity that had hardened to inexorable enmity in the crucible of his passion, recurred with tenfold strength and nearly overmastered him. It is only the ruin their own deeds have wrought that men can view complacently.

He stepped forward a single pace, with an unconscious gesture as one who tears from his throat that which hinders free respiration. "Where," he demanded without preface or apology, in a voice so thick and hoarse he hardly knew it for his own—"Where is he?"

He saw her recoil from his advance, but whether from fear or repugnance he could not guess. When she replied it was with evident difficulty.

"He?"

Impatient, he waved aside what seemed a palpable quibble: she must know very well what he meant. "What are you doing here, in this place, alone? Why did he leave you here?"

He moved nearer, his voice rising to vehemence. "Why are you here, Katherine?"

She drew back again, passing through the gateway, so that the fence stood between them. He comprehended fully that she did this through fear of him.

"I might ask as much of you."

"Of me?" Her quietly interjected remark threw him momentarily off his line of thought.

"Yes, of you," she replied quietly, quick to see and take advantage of his distraction. "How did you get here? And why?"

"By boat," he returned stupidly, only irritated by this persistence in raising what to him, in his humor of the moment, seemed trivial and inconsequent issues—"my boat. We got lost and ran aground in the fog

"Is it likely?" he answered. "But where is he? What made him leave you here?"

"Garrett!"

Her tone would have warned him, but he was able to see but one thing, the conclusion to which his reason, spurred by his inclination to credit the worst to the man, had jumped the moment he realized her existence in surroundings so foreign to her kind: that Blackstock, true to type, having persuaded Katherine to their clandestine marriage and gained his end, the control of her little fortune, had abandoned her even as he had abandoned Dundas, even as he would have discarded an old shoe or anything that had served his purpose and worn out its usefulness to his form, leaving her to languish in this forlorn and desolate spot, out of his way and out of the world's way. . . He hesitated to collect his wife, then pursued doggedly:

"Tell me where to find him," he said, his voice shaking—"give me the least hint to go by, Katherine, and I'll hunt him down, wherever he may be, I'll bring him back, I'll—"

In his agitation he verged on incoherence.

Quietly but effectively the woman brought him to his senses. "I shall have to ask you not to continue in that tone," she said with disconcerting dignity. "You must not misconstrue matters arbitrarily to suit your prejudice. My husband has not left me, as you insist; there is no need for you to contemplate 'hunting him down.' He is here."

"Here?" Involuntarily Coast's glance veered to the house, suspicious and alert.

"On this island," she affirmed.

"What island?" he demanded, turning back to her.

"No Man's Land."

He accepted this confirmation of his conjecture with a reluctant, inconclusive, "Oh?"

"You didn't know—?" she asked, incredulous.

"How should I know?"

She watched him, distrustful. "You didn't come here on purpose."

"It was chance," he asserted. None the less an unformed suspicion involving Appleyard crossed his mind. He considered, rejected and forgot it all in a breath.

"We bought the island last spring."

"Yes," he said listlessly.

Her nervousness drove her on in rambling, incoherent and unnecessary explanation: "After we returned from Germany, on account of Douglas' eyes. . . It is quite blind, you know, and the shock of losing his sight almost prostrated him. He is permitted no excitement, no social life—just peace and such mental employment as his work affords. So we heard of this place, looked it up and bought it. The Standard Wireless people installed an experiment station for his use. But it isn't generally known—the vice-president of the company, one of his best friends, managed it all for us. The necessity for seclusion, you understand. . . Even the servants know him only as Mr. Black."

"I understand," he said in an expressionless tone. "And this"—he nodded toward the farmhouse—"is your home?"

"Not exactly." Already she was regretting the intimacy her breathless explanation had implied. She hesitated, seeming reluctant to continue. "We—Douglas and I—occupy two rooms of the bungalow, where the wireless station is, up on the hill. There are no facilities for housekeeping, so we come here for our meals. The servants live here—and Mr. Power, my husband's assistant."

Very Likely.

"What's your boy going to do when he gets out of college?" "Come back here and find fault with the way we do things at home, I suppose."

"Tell Me Where to Find Him."

last night, I came ashore to try to find out where we were."

"Then you have escaped?" She went directly to the sole explanation of his presence there that lay within her understanding.

"Escaped?" Her shock his head, not in negation but testily. "Yes, of course; or I shouldn't be here."

It was plain enough to him that he had escaped the fate to which he had been sentenced. To what else could he refer? "But you—how—that dog, Blackstock—I want to know."

"Garrett!" she cried sharply, and he fell silent beneath the challenge of her eyes. "Mr. Blackstock is my husband. Please," she continued, more gently, "don't forget that."

Power of Wealth.

The ultimate test of the real efficiency of a rich man is to be able to get his divorce without due publicity and attendant scandal, except in those few cases where they rather enjoy the new sensation of notoriety, a phase which is really pathological.—Life.

An Accident.

Lady of the House—I know that your character has been blackened. Applicant—Yes, ma'am; that's where my last misadventure split the ink on it.

Mrs. Prime Puzzled.

Cy Prime says he often tells his wife that whatever he amounts to he owes to her—and the poor woman can't make up his mind whether he is handing her an insult or compliment.

How to Do It.

Kenneth was trying to write the word "tree," says the Chicago Record-Herald. He knew how to make the first two letters, but could not remember the "ee." Russell, two years older, and who is fond of boasting, essayed to help his little brother thus: "Kenneth, why don't you just pull out that blue and the two knots in it?"

Denatured Kicking.

New Jersey has a mayor who asks the citizens to come around once a week and register their kicks. Yes, and no doubt he has a bulky chief of police and several brawny patrolmen standing around to intimidate the kickers.
